P. F. COLLIER & SON COMPANY
Publishers of Good Books

In One Volume— made for you in America

Here is a tiny photograph of the wonderful new American-made masterpiece; a single beautiful volume containing everything Shakespeare ever wrote! For many months, master printers in the famous Lakeside Press have worked on this glorious book. With the Scottish and Oxford rivals to spur them (we have depended on these famous British Shakespeares in the past) our American experts have at last made a book that leads the world.

1312 pages in Clear, Readable Type
Flexible—Weights Only 18 Ounces.

Every man, woman, boy and girl should own this concise Shakespeare. Using India paper, thin and opaque, on which expensive encyclopedias and Bibles are printed, the Lakeside Press has put all Shakespeare's works—tragedies, comedies, historical plays and sonnets—into this one beautiful little book. So skillfully bound it will fit your pocket, so flexible you can easily roll it up. Thousands of the imported volumes were sold by us for $6.50. Now, helped by keen buying of a carload of India paper, rid of ocean freights and customs charges, our American workmen have not only made a better book but a less expensive one. To share their saving with you, we offer

SPECIAL CASH PRICE $5.00—With complimentary copy of Omar's Rubaiyat. Act quickly. Send no money, simply detach and mail this coupon now, before it is mislaid.

And a copy of Omar Khayyam—FREE

Pocket edition of the famous Rubaiyat, best of all books to dip into for a profound thought or a haunting line of Oriental poetry. Large, clear type, well bound in limp leather, stamped in gold. While the edition lasts, a copy of Omar—without extra charge—comes to you with Shakespeare.

SEND NO MONEY

Take plenty of time to examine the Collier's Lakeside Shakespeare in your own home. Compare it with other books. Show it to your friends. If it does not far exceed your expectations, return it without charge or obligation.

P. F. COLLIER & SON COMPANY, 250 Park Ave., New York City.
Send me for free examination a copy of your Collier's Lakeside De Luxe edition of Shakespeare's Works, complete in one volume. Send me also without charge, until edition is exhausted, the pocket Omar Khayyam.

☐ When the books are delivered I will deposit $1.50 with the postman, plus a few cents postage, and send you $1.00 each month until the full price of $5.50 has been paid.

OR

☐ I will deposit the special cash price—$5.00—with the postman, which will be credited as payment in full, and promptly returned to me if I decide not to retain the books.

(Mark X in square to indicate plan of payment you prefer. Your deposit will be refunded at once if the Shakespeare does not exceed your expectations.)

BEST BRAIN TEASERS WIN CASH PRIZES EVERY WEEK

FOR the best original contribution printed on this page each week a prize of $15 in cash will be awarded.

For the next best contribution a prize of $10 will be awarded. For each additional contribution published on this page The Mid-Week Pictorial will pay $5.

Each contributor should state that to his best knowledge and belief his contribution has not hitherto been printed in its present form. Answers or solutions must accompany each contribution.

The contest is open to every one except employees of The New York Times Company, and it is not necessary to purchase a copy of The Mid-Week Pictorial, as the magazine may be inspected at any business office of The New York Times Company and at the many public libraries where it is on file. The decisions of the Editor will be made largely on the originality and cleverness of the contribution, and in every case shall be final.

All contributions should be addressed to
THE SPHINX EDITOR, MID-WEEK PICTORIAL,

The Movie Chatterbox Says:
ACCORDING to my spies in Hollywood, who, disguised as two aisle seats at Grauman's Egyptian Theatre, witnessed the premiere of Master Charles Spencer Chaplin's latest and longest photoplay, "The Gold Rush," here is the greatest and most elaborate comedy ever filmed—one that will stand for years as the outstanding comedy of film history. "The Gold Rush" is declared to be a distinctive triumph for Charlie, with dramatic situations bordering on tragedy that show the master hand and finesse of Professor Chaplin's artistry. Humor, my spies say, is, of course, the dominating force, with Chaplin outdoing himself as a comedian. He transcends everything that has gone before in a comedy production, and it will be a long time before any one can replace him as a genius of pantomime. Lavish praise, but I trust my spies. The supporting cast includes Georgia Hale, Mack Swain, Tom Murray, Malcom Waite, Henry Bergman and a host of helpers.

A motion-picture company was on location in the California Desert, and while the director and star were taking a walk they suddenly came upon a giant tarantula.

"Look out! Don't step on it!" warned the director. "It might be Lon Chaney in a new rôle."

Which may be the reason for Lon, who has attained stardom by playing rôles of a weird and grotesque character, to declare that he will now turn to portrayals depending on more deeply human qualities for their interest. "The Unholy Three" is his latest film.

Michael Arlen, the genial Armenian writer who has given us "The Green Hat," "These Charming People" and "May Fair," is now in England, his chosen homeland, writing a number of original screen plays for Pola Negri. The first Arlen story is tentatively called "The Crossroads of the World," and Mike will return to America in the Fall and go to Hollywood to aid personally in the filming of his first screen effort.

The final scenes of "The Wanderer," a screen version of the Prodigal Son story, have been completed, and the photoplay is said to provide a number of spectacular scenes of "Ten Commandments" flavor. . . . Gilda Gray's first Paramount picture will be "The Talk of the Town."

Metro-Goldwyn will film the popular George Ade play, "The College Widow." . . . Leatrice Joy has completed "Hell's Highway," her first picture for Cecil B. De Mille. . . . Bebe Daniels's next film will be "Wild, Wild Susan," a comedy. . . . Bessie Love and Neil Hamilton will play the leading rôles in "New Brooms," an adaptation of Frank Craven's play of the same name.

SMART TOUCHES NOTED IN MIDSUMMER OUT-OF-DOORS COSTUMES

Selected by Margery Wells

THE LENGLEN FROCK

of White Silk With Pleated Skirt and a Knitted Coat Sweater to Complete the Attire.

(© Dobbs, From Kadel and Herbert.)

LENGLEN started it, and now most of the women who indulge in active sports are following her example. They are wearing silk dresses for sports, soft, crushable things that look just as lovely when the sport is not in progress as when it is.

The fact is that the general character of the modern sports dress tempts women to take up sport when the idea had never before entered their heads. One of the drawbacks to being a tennis player used to be that the sweater and skirt were not as becoming as some other clothes that girls were accustomed to wear. Oh, yes, some of us did persuade ourselves that we looked quite fetching in those garments; but from any unbiased point of view we were stretching the point a long way. Some girls are adorable in sweaters, but they are in the minority.

Now, with the newer, softer silk dresses sweaters are also worn; but they are not really salient parts of the costume. They are there when they are needed, as sweaters often are, but the frock is just as good without them, and when they are added they harmonize very well with the general scheme of things.

The Lenglen dress in the picture, for instance, is made of white Japanese silk of a beautiful lustrous quality. The skirt is pleated in wide pleats, so that it is very full indeed and allows all sorts of freedom for running and jumping and doing all the active exercises that are necessary when one is indulging in outdoor sports. Of course, with this dress wide bloomers made of the same material are worn, so that the whole combination is one that is peculiarly suited to the purpose for which it is used.

Not all of these softer sports dresses are made in white, though there is nothing nicer, considering the fact that it will always wash with such thorough satisfaction. Some of them are made from wash silks that are woven in all sorts of pastel colors peculiarly fashionable and pleasing to the popular taste this Summer.

The Chinese brocades are used widely for the making of one-piece dresses, and these are being worn for outdoor occasions where formerly gingham and other cotton materials were used for the same purpose. Girls have come to see, however, that one handsome silk dress will not only take the place of several cotton ones but that it will wash with the same durability and will lend its color for a much longer life of wear and tear. Cottons, as a matter of fact, have soared so much in price that the silk dress has come to be a much more economical proposition.

When you are choosing silks for this purpose, however, you must be sure to buy the right ones—those that are guaranteed to withstand the ravages of the washtub. Both the Japanese and Chinese washable silks are excellent for this purpose, as are also the domestic weaves that are sold under the name of "wash silks." M. W.

Are You Afraid To Face The Truth About Yourself?

There are occasions in the life of every man when he realizes how miserably he has fallen below what others had expected of him and what he had dreamed for himself. The "big" man faces the truth, analyzes his shortcomings, and does something about them. The "little" man finds an excuse for his failure, and does nothing. What are your answers when you ask yourself questions like these?

Am I not drifting along aimlessly?

What, after all, is my purpose in life?

Once I had real ambitions—am I ready to admit they are unattainable?

Am I trusting too much to chance to bring me success?

Why do others, less intelligent than I, succeed where I have failed?

What really are my weak points?

What weakness has done most to hold me back?

Is it lack of will, poor memory, mental laziness, mind-wandering, feeble imagination—or what?

Am I too old now ever to do anything worth-while?

Am I "licked" by life, am I ready to quit trying?

What can I do, now, to "find myself"?

How 650,000 people have "found themselves" through Pelmanism

HERE is an intensely human document, characteristic of the many men and women who are ever groping for some way out of "blind alley" into which they have wandered:

"If I could only really and honestly believe in myself," this man wrote us. "If I could only forget my past failure, the fifteen years I've wasted,—just wasted—drifting from one job to another, always optimistic. If I had only had a CLEAR AIM,—if I had only stuck to something,—I realize I would not now be in the deep rut where I am, and at the age of 35—think of it! All my friends are married; I alone am not. They are all well-fixed. Most of the men who used to be in my class at school are either heads of businesses or are professional men. Why is it? Why am I left behind, a mere salary-slave? Why do people say of me, as I know they do, 'He'll never amount to anything now'? Why is it that a certain friend of mine, who really has far less ability and intelligence than I, is one of the wealthiest and best-known men in town? I'd do anything to start over again and get confidence in myself. I don't want to fool myself any longer. I not only want to think I am somebody, but REALLY KNOW IT, and FEEL IT and BE IT!"

Now a New Man

Today this man, a few months ago so despondent, has really "found himself." He is out of the position that he had filled for years. He is doing the kind of work that he had always dreamed of doing. His talents are blossoming out. His associates respect him highly and admire him. He is overflowing with an immense ambition and energy. He is happier than he has ever been in his life. For at last he is on the High Road to Achievement—late indeed, but going strong! And his regeneration is typical of that which has been experienced by hundreds of thousands of other people, who have "found themselves" by means of Pelmanism.

Awakens Unsuspected Powers

There is no secret as to how Pelmanism works these seeming miracles of regeneration. It is a scientific system of mind-training; it takes the well-established principles of psychology, simplifies them so that they can be understood by everybody, and arranges them into a really remarkable system, which is designed to re-arouse and to train certain mental faculties, which in most of us lie absolutely dormant and atrophied.

Pelmanism originated in Great Britain. Members of the royal family, leading statesmen, distinguished military and naval officers, world-famous authors, artists, actors, editors and publicists, leaders in industry and finance, people of the highest distinction in the Empire—became just as enthusiastic Pelmanists as clerks and "Tommies" and day-laborers.

When the movement spread to America, the same story was repeated—captains of industry and finance, men of affairs, jurists, writers, leading business men, professional people of all types—adopted Pelmanism as enthusiastically as wage-earners and college students. And now, over 650,000 people in every part of the world, men and women usually of the highest type of intelligence, have adopted and use Pelmanism to help them "find themselves."

The Kind of People Who Advocate Pelmanism
